matched by those of the Germans. If the latest reports on the number of German warships lost are confirmed, in the British casualty list are included Captain Prowse and the entire complement of the battle cruiser Queen Mary, which had probably between 900 and 950 men on board. Rear Admiral Hood was lost with the battle cruiser Invincible.

Two of the Zeppelins which played such an important part in the engagement by keeping the Germans informed of the British fleet's movements were destroyed, according to report brought in by Danish fishermen, who declare that the entire crew of one of the airships perished when their craft was burned.

Wounded men from the engagement have begun to arrive in London, cheered by crowds assembled to meet them.

According to one report today, British warships are watching off the Danish coast for the appearance of eight German warships which are declared to have taken refuge in Danish ports after the North Sea battle, being given twenty-four hours to leave by the Danish authorities.

Wounded men from the North Sea battle reached London today. They were removed to hospitals or their homes by Red Cross ambulances.

Crowds assembled at the railway stations cheering them.

Vice Admiral Beatty, in reporting the death of Rear Admiral Hood, who was flying his flag from the Invincible, as second in command of the British battle squadron, said:

"Hood led the division into action, with the most inspiring courage."

Rear Admiral Hood married Mrs. Nicholson, an American.

Vice Admiral Beatty also reported the deaths of Captain Gower of the indefatigable Captain Gower of the battle cruiser Invincible and Captain Prowse of the battle cruiser Queen Mary.

SEVEN SURVIVORS THINK

55 COMRADES ARE DEAD

London, June 3 (10:15 a. m.)—Eighty-five of the crew of 320 men aboard the British destroyer Sharp were lost, in the belief of seven survivors who were landed at Hull yesterday by a Danish steamship.

Although the Sharp was not named in the official reports of British losses, it was said several destroyers in addition to those identified as lost had not been accounted for.

BEATTY ENGAGED WHOLE

GERMAN FLEET FOR TIME

London, Friday, June 2, 11:07 p. m.—(Delayed in transmission)—Carful comparison of the British and German reports of the sea fight off the Danish coast seem to indicate that Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty's cruiser squadron came in contact with the German main fleet, or possibly, in the first instance, a portion of that fleet.

Although aware that he was opposing a stronger force than his own, the official statement makes it appear, naval observers say, that Vice Admiral Beatty, courageously engaged the Germans. Later, presumably, the whole German fleet appeared. Vice Admiral Beatty was then completely outnumbered and before Admiral Jellicoe's main fleet was able to get into action the Germans sailed off.

According to estimates made here, which in the absence of official figures can only be conjectural, the losses in men must be somewhere in the neighborhood of 5,000. It is similarly estimated that the German losses were of men between 2,000 and 3,000. No attempt is made here to minimize the seriousness of the British losses in ships and men and that according to present information the German fleet had the best of the action.
